INDIAN HISTORY.

From the Philadelphia Register and National Recorder.

Historical and Literary Transactions, vol. I, by the Historical and Literary Committee of the Philosophical Society—pp 464—Abm. Small, Philadelphia.

When we reflect that among the first emigrants to Pennsylvania, there were many well informed men, who had leisure and capacity to write, it has been difficult to account for the want of accurate information concerning the condition.habits and usages of the Aborigines, which the friendly intercourse of those peaceful times, afforded so ample an opportunity to obtain. William Penn, in some of his letters to his friends in England, furnishes an outline of the character of the Indians, and pourtrays with much feeling and emphasis, the distinguished kindness and fidelity displayed towards him and his associates, by the hospitable and high minded sovereigns of the wilderness. Anthony Benezet, whose sympathies were awakened, and whose charities extended toward the natives, in common with all other classes of men who became obnoxious to oppression, collected and published, more than fifty years ago, some interesting traits, which shed light upon their character. Proud, in his history (or perhaps, more correctly, in his materials for a history) of Pennsylvania, has some valuable passages which introduce us to an acquaintance with our red brethren, whilst subsequent writers have occasionally added to the small stock of intelligence, which has accumulated during the progress of more than a century. The most however that can be said of the information thus acquired and preserved, is that it was desultory in manner, and barren in point of facts, compared with the variety and extent of the subject. The neglect of a topic so interesting, until this remote period, would seem to afford but little expectation that authentic matter, could be obtained for compiling an account of those Indians who dwelt upon the soil of Pennsylvania, at the time when its truly illustrious and benevolent founder declared it to be an asylum for the oppressed, and constituted it the birth place of civil and religious liberty! Unpropitious, however, as the attempt might appear, the Historical Committee have succeeded in the production of a volume, which we do not hesitate to pronounce, to be the most interesting book of its kind which has ever issued from the American press.

The first part of this volume contains an account of the Indian nations who once inhabited Pennsylvania, and is supplied by the venerable John Heckewelder, of Bethlehem, who, during many years of his life resided among the natives, and who appears to be intimately acquainted with their character and habits. The second part of the work is a correspondence between John Heckewelder, and Peter S. Duponceau, esq. respecting the languages of the American Indians, with a report from the pen of the latter gentleman, addressed to the Historical Committee on the general character, and forms of those languages, exhibiting the most learned elucidation of that subject, which has perhaps ever been submitted to the reading world.

Before we proceed to make a few extracts from the volume before us, we cannot refrain from remarking, that the public is mainly indebted for its existence to the late amiable and excellent Dr. Wistar. At his particular request, his friend Heckewelder was induced to communicate the information which makes up the body of the work, and he was thus instrumental in preserving a mass of knowledge, which in all probability might otherwise have been lost to mankind. It needs not the humble pen which now moves, to add a line of grateful praise upon the urn of the lamented Wistar, in order to render it an object of more affectionate contemplation, though the heart which dictates this tribute to one of his disinterested and useful labors, feels and more than it will feel, that the worth of that uncommon man expands and magnifies before the mind, as time removes us from the sad and solemn hour of his dissolution. X.

EDUCATION.

The first step that parents take towards the education of their children, is to prepare them for future happiness, by impressing upon their tender minds, that they are indebted for their existence to a great, good, and benevolent spirit, who not only has given them life, but has ordained them for certain great puposes. That he has given them a fertile extensive country, well stocked with game of every kind for their subsistence, and that by one of his inferior spirits he has also sent down to them from above corn, pumpkins, squashes, beans, and other vegetables for their nourishment—all of which blessings their ancestors have enjoyed for a great number of ages. That this great spirit looks down upon the Indians, to see whether they are grateful to him and make a due return for the many benefits he has bestowed, and therefore, that it is their duty to show their thankfullness by worshipping him and doing that which is pleasing in his sight.

When this instruction is given in the form of precepts, it must not be supposed that it is done in an authoritative or forbidding tone, but on the contrary, in the gentlest and most persuasive manner: nor is the parents authority ever supported by harsh or compulsive means; no whips, no punishments, no threats are used to enforce command or compel obedience. The childs pride is the feeling to which an appeal is made, which proves successful in every instance. A father needs only to say in the presence of his children: "I want such a thing done; I want one of my children to go upon such an errand; let me see who is the good child that will do it!" This word good operates, as it were, by magic, and the children immediately vie with each other to comply with the wishes of their parent. If a father sees an old decrepid man or woman pass by, led along by a child, he will draw the attention of his own children to the object by saying: "What a good child that must be, which pays such attention to the aged! That child, indeed, looks forward, to the time when it will likewise be old!" or he will say, "May the great Spirit, who looks upon him, grant this good child a long life!"

This method of conveying instruction is, I believe, common to most Indian nations; it is so at least amongst all those that I have become acquainted with, and lays the foundation for that voluntary submission to their chiefs, for which they are so remarkable. Thus has been maintained for ages, without convulsions and without civil discords, this traditional government, of which the world, perhaps, does not offer another example; a government in which there are no positive laws, but only long established habits and customs; no code of jurisprudence, but the experience of former times; no magistrate, but advisers, to whom the people, nevertheless, pay a willing and implicit obedience, in which age confers rank, wisdom gives power, and moral goodness secures a title to universal respect.—All this seems to be effected by the simple means of an excellent mode of education, by which a strong attachment to ancient customs, respect for age, and the love of virtue, are indelibly impressed upon the minds of youth, so that these impressions acquire strength as time pursues its course, and as they pass through successive generations.

REMARKABLE ANECDOTE.

There were in the village of La Chine, two remarkable Indians, the one for his stature, being six feet 4 inches in height, and the other for his strength and activity. These two meeting together one day in the street (a third being present) the former in a high tone made use of some insulting language to the other, which he could not well put up with; he called him a coward, said he was his inferior in every respect, and so provoked his anger, that unable any longer to contain himself, the latter instantly replied: "You have grossly insulted me; but I will prevent you from doing the like again!" and at the same moment stabbed him through the body with his knife, so that he dropped down dead by his side.—The alarm being immediately spread thro' the village, a crowd of Indians, assembled and the murderer having seated himself on the ground by the side of the dead body, cooly awaited his fate, which he could not expect to be any other than immediate death, particularly as the cry of the people was "Kill him! kill him!" But although he placed his body and head in a proper posture to receive the stroke of the tomahawk, no one attempted to lay hands on him; but after removing the dead body from where it lay, they left him alone. Not meeting here with his expected fate, he rose from this place for a more public part of the village, and there lay down on the ground in the hope of being the sooner despatched; but the spectators, after viewing him all retired again. Sensible that his life was justly forfeited, and anxious to be relieved from a state of suspense, he took the resolution to go to the mother of the deceased, an aged widow, whom he addressed in these words: "Woman, I have killed thy son: he has insulted me, it is true; but still he was thine, and his life was valuable to thee. I, therefore, now surrender myself up to thy will. Direct as thou wilt have it, and relieve me speedily from misery."

To which the woman answered: "Thou hast indeed killed my son who was dear to me, and the only supporter I had in my old age. One life is already lost, and to take thine on that account, cannot be of any service to me, nor better my situation. Thou hast, however, a son, whom if thou wilt give me in place of my son whom thou hast slain, all shall be wiped away." The murderer then replied: "Mother, my son is yet but a child, ten years old, and can be of no service to thee, but rather a trouble and charge; but here am I, truly capable of supporting and maintaining thee: if thou wilt receive me as thy son, nothing shall be wanting on my part to make thee comfortable while thou livest." The woman approving of the proposal, forthwith adopted him as her son, and took the whole family to her house.

TREATIES.

In early times, when Indian nations, after long and bloody wars, met together for the purpose of adjusting their differences, or concluding a peace with each other, it was their laudable custom, as a token of their sincerity, to remove out of the place where the peacemakers were sitting, all warlike weapons and instruments of destruction, of whatever form or shape. "For," said they, when we are engaged in a good work, nothing that is bad must be visible. We are met together to forgive and forget, to bury the destructive weapon, and put it quite out of sight; we cast away from us the fatal instrument that has caused so much grief to our wives and children, and has been the source of so many tears. It is our earnest hope and wish that it may never be dug up again." So particular were they on this point, that if a single weapon had been in sight, while a treaty was negociating, it would have disturbed their minds by recalling the memory of past events and instead (as they say,) of gladdening their hearts, by the prospect of a speedy peace, would on the contrary, have filled them with sorrow.

Nor would they even permit any warlike weapons to remain within the limits of their council fire, when assembled together about the ordinary businesss of government. It might, they said, have a bad effect, and defeat the object for which they had met. It might be a check on some of the persons assembled, and perhaps, prevent those who had a just complaint or representation to make from speaking their minds freely. William Penn, said they, when he treated with them, adopted this ancient mode of their ancestors, and convened them under a grove of shady trees, where the little birds on their boughs were warbling their sweet notes. In commemoration of these conferences (which are always to Indians a subject of pleasing remembrance) they frequently assembled together in the woods, in some shady spot as nearly as possible similar to those where they used to meet their brother Miquon, and there lay all his "words" or speeches, with those of his descendants, on a blanket or clean piece of bark, and with great satisfaction go successively over the whole. This practice (which I have repeatedly witnessed) continued until the year 1780, when the disturbances which then took place put an end to it, probably forever.

These pleasing remembrances, these sacred usages are no more. "When we treat with the white people," do the Indians now say, "we have not the choice of the spot where the messengers are to meet. When we are called upon to conclude a peace, (and what a peace?) the meeting no longer takes place in the shady grove, where the innocent little birds with their cheerful songs, seem as if they wished to soothe and enliven our minds, tune them to amity and concord, and take a part in the good work for which we are met. Neither is it at the sacred council house that we are invited to assemble. No! it is at some of those horrid places, surrounded with mounds and ditches, where the most destructive of all weapons, where great guns are gaping at us with their wide mouths, as if ready to devour us; and thus we are prevented from speaking our minds freely, as brothers ought to do!"

HEADS OF DEPARTMENTS.

The only members of the cabinet who remain at the seat of government are, Mr. John Q. Adams, secretary of state, and Mr. Wm. H. Crawford, secretary of the treasury.

Mr. Calhoun, secretary of war, set out, on the 31st ultimo, in company with the president, for South Carolina; Mr. Thompson, secretary of the navy, has left here on a visit to New-York; and Mr. Wirt, attorney general, has taken a trip to Virginia.

Mr. Rush the American minister gave a grand entertainment, at his house on the 22d Febuary, in honor of the birth day of Washington. Several other entertainments were given, by the American residents in London, on the same occasion.

Washington City Gazette.

The Chevalier De Onis, the Minister of Spain, and his family, have departed from the seat of government, for one of the Northern ports, to take their passage for Spain, he having obtained leave to return home. In noticing his departure, it is no more than just to say, that, in the midst of trying scenes; in maintaining a correspondence with our government, in which he had large pretentions to assert, and strong popular prejudice to encounter, his personal deportment, in official as well as in private circles, has been such as to entitle him to the entire respect of those who had an opportunity of observing it. While he has stedfastly maintained the ground prescribed to him by his government, he has never, to our knowledge, in his intercourse with our government, or our fellow-citizens, forgotten for a moment, the character and obligations of a gentleman, but has invariably maintained the one and performed the other. Thus much, which we have refrained from saying whilst he was present, is no more than is due to him on his departure from amongst us.

From the last Massachusetts Agricultural Repository and Journal.

One of the most successful experiments in agriculture that we have ever known, is that of the Alms-house farm in Salem, which is under the superintendance of Mr. Paul Upton.

This farm consists of about thirty-five acres, as we are informed, and was two years since in a state of nature, and very rough land. It has been brought to, and the produce, during the year 1818, was as follows:—

Pork killed, weight 7960 lbs.
Twelve live pigs sold for 42 dollars.
On hand fifty-seven live pigs.
Corn 400 bushels.
Potatoes 2250 bushels.
Turnips 900 bushels.
Three tons of squashes.
Fifty tons pumpkins.
All the common summer vegetables for the Alms-house.

We doubt whether any farm in the United States has produced more in proportion to its size, and it is a proof what well-directed industry can effect.

GUESS WORK.

When I see a young man often at a tavern, (grog shop) regaling himself on the ale bench, I guess by the time he is 45, he will be seen under the same seat, the scoff of boys, and a companion for none but the worshippers of Bacchus—look out girls.—When I see a young man with a violin under his coat, I guess he is a fiddling fellow and has robbed those of a darker hue of their trade.—Dont marry a fiddler, young lady!—When I see a young man with a pack of cards in his pocket, and will not work for his living, I guess before he has finished his game of life he will be called a pauper—Young lady be cautious of gamblers! When I see a girl stand one fourth of her time at the glass, (window) twisting her hair into rings, which they term "beau catchers," I guess the beau she catches will find himself caught in an evil net. When I often see a girl travelling the streets, I guess she does not love the word work.—When I see a young girl trying tricks, I guess she wants to get married; but I guess ten to one if she is not obliged to spend the dreary life of an old maid. When I hear girls telling compliments to each other from other persons, I guess one half they tell are falsehoods: I further guess they had better mend the holes in their stockings, if not their under linen. A word to the wise is enough, says the Sage Franklin in his "way to wealth."

I am yet contented to live an

We are indebted to Mr. Topliff for a file of the Rotterdam Courant, to Feb. 25, and for Calcutta papers to Dec. 22. The former contain no news. From the latter we extract the following.

[Boston Daily Advertiser.

Ceylon, Nov. 7.

The time is at length happily come when we may congratulate the public upon the complete termination of the Candyan rebellion. For some weeks past we have observed with much pleasure the general failure of the rebel leaders, in all their attempts, and with still greater satisfaction the manifest alteration that was beginning to show itself in the disposition of the people; yet we could not venture, while the rebel chiefs were at liberty, to decide upon those unfortunate disturbances being at an end. We were too well aware of the overbearing influence of the Kandyan chiefs, and the habitual subserviency of the Kandyan people, not to doubt the permanence of restored tranquility, while those powerful agitators of disaffection were at large: but every doubt on this subject is now at an end. All the rebel leaders of the first consequence are in our possession, not received by voluntary surrender, upon the faith of conditions, either expressed or implied, but prisoners fairly taken by the indefatigable exertions of our brave troops, who have undergone a succession of hardships, labor and privation, with such cheerfulness and alacrity as must always be remembered to their honor.

In our last Gazette we mentioned the report from Kornegalle of the capture of Capitipola and Pelime Talawe, we had from the first no doubt of the truth of our information, but it was not until the paper had been some time in the press and the greater part of the edition printed, all that is to say, which were sent by the post, that we received from Lieut. Col. Hook a full confirmation of the important event, which was printed in the few remaining copies of the Gazette.

REPUBLIC OF HAYTI.

The following decree has been issued by the president of the republic of Hayti.

"Jean P. Boyer, president of the republic of Hayti, seeing that the public edifices require repairs, that the planters are in want of materials to construct necessary buildings, decrees, that until the 31st Dec. 1819, lumber of all descriptions (except spars) may be imported free of duty and wharfage into all the ports of the republic." [Signed at Port-au-Prince, March 1, 1819.]

The colored General Gomar, who commands a large force in the mountains of St. Domingo, and against whom president Boyer has lately marched, is said to be an independent chief—and that his defeat or success will serve Christophe.

From the journal of ship New-Galen, arrived at Boston, from Bahia:

March 1, lat. 3, 33, s, lon. 35, 20, w. at 10, A. M. saw a schr to the westward bearing down upon us—soon after she fired a gun—after speaking, the commander stated, that a few days before he was in a brig, and had captured the schr he was then in, she being a pirate—he begged to be reported as follows—"schr General Montague, Captain Babbidge, bound to Margaretta." She was coppered to light water mark, painted white about to the bends, above which was black.

The above schr was under the Buenos Ayres flag, and appeared to be about 100 or 120 tons and to have about 25 or 30 men on board, with a large gun on a pivot and several smaller ones.

Baltimore, April 13.

The Eagle, capt. Isley, from Rio Janeiro, was boarded March 10, in lat. 4, 10 S. long. 29 W. by the brig Fortuna, (formerly Fourth of July) under the Patriot flag; was informed by the boarding officer that three days before they had captured a large Portuguese ship, with a valuable cargo; and on the next day fell in with a Portuguese man of war brig of 20 guns, which they also captured after a sharp action—hove all her guns over; took what they wanted out; put the people of the ship on board and set her at liberty. The boat's crew told the Eagle's people, that they had one killed and three wounded; and that they killed ten and wounded twenty of the Portuguese.

Extract of a letter received by the Mary & Susan, dated Rotterdam, Feb. 22, to a merchant in this town.

During the first parts of the last year, commerce was both extensive and profitable—proud of the success and confident of its continuance, immense engagements were contracted, many of them became due in the fall and former part of the winter, when money is generally scarce and when our outlets lessen materially.—The high rates of produce decreased the demand, realizing became difficult, prices were depressed, and a great embarrassment ensued. Stock jobbing was also attempted upon a large scale, and ruined many a fortune. For some time business fluctuated constantly, the stock of produce accumulated in the mean while, and a great calamity soon broke out in every quarter, with the most frightful aspect. Both in this and all surrounding countries, failures of immense import become frequent, in England more especially we are mortified to say, that they still continue without interruption and money never was so scarce there; immense capitals are lost, commerce is entirely unsettled, the want of confidence universal, and the value of almost every article little more than nominal. To increase the evil, considerable public sales of produce are advertised in Amsterdam, which only can have a tendency further to injure the prices; It is impossible to say when and how such a universal distres will subside, this depends upon more circumstances than human sagacity can foresee, but we expect when once to attend, commerce will return to its former regular channels, and shall be happy to give you soon more satisfactory accounts on the subject.

CREMER & WILKENS.

Charleston, April 8.

LATEST FROM THE HAVANA.

By the schr New-Orleans, arrived last evening, (Tuesday) we received papers and a prices current down to the 20th ult. inclusive. The following is an extract from our correspondent:

"Annexed you have our latest price current—rice will not command over $3—a part of the Legal Tender's cargo, I believe, was sold at $8½."

"The Floridas are not spoken of amongst us—the folks begin to think the cession will take place. ——— [Times.

Accounts have been received at Havana from Lima, by a vessel in 17 days from Porto Bello, stating that the royal army was shortly to move from Talcuhuana, upon Santiago, the capital of Chili. This intelligence being very late, the report of the capture of Lima by the patriots, cannot be true. ——— [Ibid.

The fluctuations, in the market prices of various commodities, and of stock, in England, show, that the mercantile and pecuniary affairs of that country are in a condition far from settled regularity and stability. The prospects held out to us respecting some at least of our principal productions, are certainly not very flattering. If we lose the profitable exportation of cotton, flour, &c. our country must sensibly feel the loss. The difficulty of bringing the trading world, and indeed, the laboring world, back to a state of quiet contentment with the steady pursuits of industry, and satisfaction with moderate gains and reasonable expences, is even greater than was apprehended. It is no easy thing for men, whose habits have been of a different character for so long a course of time, as has been so extensively the fact for twenty years past, to abandon the irregular speculating course of business, to relinquish the idea of making large fortunes in a short time, and to bring their minds to the pursuit of a more moderate though a far less hazardous course. Such, however, must be the fact. Large estates must, in a time of general peace and good order, be acquired by a life of industry and labor. Such is the course of things under the order of providence; and estates thus acquired, will commonly show the fitness and wisdom of the system. [New-York Daily Advertiser.

Brig Bliss, French, of New-Orleans, at Liverpool 1st March, loading for this port —to sail the 10th.

Schr Sally, Sheldon, hence, arrived at Providence 9th inst.

Fate of the brig Mentor, of this place.

Brig Mentor, Marckley, sailed from Leith 7th Oct. last, for this port. Nothing particular occurred until the 14th, when, lying too under a close reefed main-top-sail, about 2 P. M. a heavy sea struck the vessel, and carried away all the starboard bulwarks; that on the day following, the gale continued with a heavy sea; and that at 10 A. M., when near the coast of Iceland, a heavy sea struck the vessel, and hove her on her beam ends, when it was necessary to cut away the main-lanyards,—and the main-mast broke by the deck, and was carried away, and the vessel righted; that on the 16th, wind west, and a dangerous sea running, with 5 feet water in the hold, after experiencing every hardship to which seamen are liable, arrived in Peterhead, Scotland, on the 7th Nov. A survey was held on the vessel, and she was condemned as a wreck, and the vessel and cargo sold for the benefit of all concerned. Captain Marckley arrived in town last evening, via Norfolk, and states, that all his crew were safe.

Shad and Herrings

CAN be had, in any reasonable quantities, and at moderate prices, at the

White-House Fishery

of the Belvoir estate, on the river Potomac; and persons from the country, as well as water customers, are invited to that shore, where they may expect the best treatment, and every facility, in getting such supplies as they need, which that well known fishery, and the utmost attention of the subscriber, can afford. Having been long experienced in that business on the Delaware river, and having taken the fishery for several seasons, he has caused a complete outfit to be made, not only for taking Shad, as heretofore, but Herrings, of which it is well known that almost any number may be caught at that shore, when the gluts are in the river. A very complete and commodious fish-house, on the spot, may be made use of by persons disposed to put up fish extensively, and who bring barrels and salt for the purpose. A number of barrels, and a quantity of salt, may probably also be had at the fish-house. ——As the

at the mouth of Pohick Creek, on the same estate, is carried on this season by Mr. John Henderson, there will be the greater certainty that customers will not be disappointed in herrings, the two fisheries being near together: but country customers are cautioned not to come too early for herrings; as, of late years, they have several times done, and by returning home have missed of getting their supply, which afterwards was plentiful.

Gunston for Sale.

THIS elegant estate is situated on the Potomac, 16 miles below Alexandria—it is bounded on three sides by the Potomac and Pohick creek, and contains nearly 3,000 acres of land, level and fertile, to which are attached six shad and herring fisheries, two of which command the river channel. This land will be laid off in four tracts, so as to have one or more fisheries to each; these tracts will be again divided if requisite. This estate is level and beautifully situated, very fertile, and remarkably healthy. Plaister acts with an effect equal to that of any part of Virginia or Pennsylvania.—I have used 500 bushels in twelve months, and such is its beneficial operation, that were I to keep this land I should considerably increase the quantity. A manufacturing mill is distant about two miles, on a stream navigable for vessels carrying 1200 bushels of wheat, where the Baltimore and Dist. of Columbia prices are given for grain: being bounded on 3 sides by water, a small extent only of fence is necessary to inclose the whole: it would be admirably adapted to grazing. The improvements are a large and very substantial brick mansion, 40 by 70 feet, with every necessary outhouse, three commodious barns, houses for Negroes, and fish houses at each of the fisheries. 120,000 bricks and 1000 bushels of lime are just burnt on the premises. There is a considerable extent of live fence, both useful and ornamental, two orchards of well selected apples and peach, besides an abundance of other choice fruit. More than 150 acres are in clover, 200 in corn, and land is in preparation for sowing 250 bushels of small grain. Any quantity of hay can be cut from the low grounds, some of which (and all might,) have been reclaimed at a trifling expense. The river and creeks, abound with wild fowl, particularly canvass backs, the woods with deer and a variety of other game. Mules, cattle, highly improved sheep, farming utensels and household furniture can be had. The terms of sale will be accommodating. Property in any of the cities, negroes, bank stock, western lands, or lands near the Ridge, will be taken in payment.—Letters must be addressed to me at Pohick Church, Fairfax county, Virginia.

September 4 GEORGE MASON.

Valuable Property for Sale.

THE subscriber is desirious of selling a handsomely situated farm, on Hunting creek, in Fairfax county Virginia, adjoining the Mount Vernon estate and the lands of general Thomson Mason, four miles from Alexandria, containing about 240 acres, 80 of which are in wood—40 to 50 in thriving meadow of clover and timothy—a part of the residue recently seeded with wheat and rye, and clover, last spring—the whole enclosed with a new post and rail fence.—The improvements are, a comfortable and convenient frame dwelling house and kitchen, smoke house, poultry house, granary and stables.—There is on this place a rich and productive garden, and a large body of marsh meadow, from which may be saved annually 100 tons of hay, nearly as nutricious as the best timothy or clover.—With the farm would be sold a number of very valuable horses, cows and sheep; waggon, carts, and a variety of farming utensils and household and kitchen furniture; corn, oats and rye, and 40 tons hay. Also, adjoining the one above described, a farm containing 160 acres, recently enclosed, on which is a brick house, which a trifling expense would render comfortable. The soil is excellent, and a considerable part might be easily converted into meadow.—It would be sold with the other or separately. Also, a number of valuable servants, male and female. To prevent unnecessary application, he would observe, that they will only be sold to persons residing in the District or its vicinity, and not to be carried from it. The subscriber will also sell the greater part of his household furniture, which is new and handsome. For terms of all or any part of the above property, apply to NOBLET HERBERT, esq. or Vaccine Institution.

THE small pox having appeared in Alexandria, such persons as have been vaccinated by the subscriber are invited to attend at his office, on St. Asaph-street, between Prince and Duke streets, to have their arms examined. Indigent persons are also invited to the same place for the purpose of being vaccinated. The subscriber will attend at his office every day in the week except Sunday, from 7 o'clock until 10 in the morning, for the purpose of receiving them.

He proposes also to be less particular than heretofore in the investigation of their claims to the benefit of the institution, as may respect their indigence and length of residence in town. The subscriber earnestly requests all such citizens as may be acquainted with persons liable to contagion, to send them without delay as above directed, where they will be served effectually and gratuitously.
